Pickets withdrawn at Polaris

GLASGOW, Scotland, Aug 12 (AP)-Pickets at the Royal Navys strike-bound Polaris nuclear submarine base on the Clyde River were withdrawn late Friday night after the governmnt made "a final pay offer" to its 183,000 hlue-collar employes.

Senior union organizer Tommy Killen said the move at the Fasiane Base was "an act of good faith," but stressed the 2,000 civilian workers at the installation will continue their two-week-old strike.

The government offer will be put to a mass union meeting outside the base on Scotland's west coast Monday when a vote will be taken on whether to end the walkout.

The strike hy the men who normally maintain . Britain's four Polaris subs has been a major political emharrassment to Prime Minister James Callaghan's Labor government.

It had to order Navy technicians to work on the subs to maintain Atlantic patrols. The Polaris vessels are Britain's nuclear force and a key part of London's commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The strikers demand a complex pay hike package the government says breaches the counter-inflationary 10 per cent limit on all increases. .

One Polaris sub is always on patrol. Right now it is the Revenge, maintained by Navy men during the dispute two weeks ago. Two others. "DO-OR-DIE"

The United States has finally recognized that time is running out for a Middle East peace settlement. The proof of this is the upcoming "do-or-die" Camp David summit, and Washington's acceptance of the role of "full partner" in the peace process. President Sadat bas long sought an American involvement in the negotiations that would be more substantive and contributory than the Kissingeresque role of "mediator." The United States has been reluctant to commit justly to full participation in the peace-making process, presumably for fear of appearing to take sides in the Arab-Israeli dispute and thus alienating either the Israelis or the Arabs. But American policymakers have realized for some time now that there was only a slim hope of maintaining the role of disinterested mediator, simply because pure mediation was not working as they had hoped, and because it was becoming clearer with each passing day that the United States has an urgent national interest in the resolution of the Middle East conflict.

The total disintegration of the peace-making process carries with it grave political and economic dangers for the United States and its allies - dangers that relate to long-term energy supplies, export markets, technology transfers, and other factors linked to the economic survival of the West, not to mention the strategic threat posed by possible Soviet gains in the Middle East. Dr. Brzezinski and his colleagues, in charting the future course of their country's foreign policy, have decided that a stable Middle East is crucial not only to America's long-range interests, but also to the world's hopes for a new international economic order. In short, the qualitative changes in the world order that have occurred since 1973 make war in the Middle East a totally unacceptable alternative. With this in mind, President Carter apparently decided that the United States can no longer afford to indulge in mediation, to play the bystander on an issue in which vital American interests are being threatened.

When the Camp David Summit convenes Sept. 5. Mr. Carter can be expected to take off the kid gloves and confront both President Sadat and Prime Minister Begin with his own concerns about the need for a comprehensive peace. The president will try to convey a global perspective on the conflict to his Egyptian and Israeli guests, and explain the urgency of a settlement in strategic and economic terms. He is likely to stress the economic advantages a comprehensive peace would hring, for Egypt, Israel and the entire region. And Mr. Carter can be expected to point up the threat of a radicaliza. tion of the Middle East that would follow a breakdown of the peace-making process. On the personal level, the U.S. president will try to establish a productive working relationship between the Egyptian and Israeli leaders. Most importantly-and the U.S. now realizes this-President Carter will bave to convince Begin that total withdrawal from the occupied territories is not an Egyptian hargaining position but a fundamental principle of any peace settlement. President Sadat cannot in good conscience accept a territorial compromise on the West Bank and Gaza. Such a compromise would violate the principles of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 and would prevent the other confrontation states from ever entering into the peace process. On this one issue at least, President Carter can be expected to take the side of the Egypttians. There may be certain points on which the American president's position may parallel that of the Israeli government, but the question of withdrawal is not one of them. The Camp David Summit is President Carter's last chance to revive the momentum towards peace. He knows this, and is willing to stay closeted with his Egyptian and Israeli counterparts as long as it takes to secure a hreakthrough-be it a matter of days or weeks. Some of Mr. Carter's advisers think the summit is an unacceptable gamble, but the president disagrees. He is at the end of his rope, and thus can be expected to do all that is humanly possible to prod the parties toward a settlement. Given the Intense personal involvement of President Carter in the search for a Middle East peace. there is at least a 50-50 chance that he'll succeed.

Crank calls and bostile letters have been few since the opening last April 17, and most of each week's 20 or so letters have been supportive or inquisitive, Haten Hussaini, the director, said in an interview.

Hussaini said the aim of the office, which receives its $88,000 a-year-budget from the PLO, is to "inform the American people about the Palestinians; what is their culture, their heritage; what are their socioeconomic conditions."

This translates into reforming the Palestinians' image from a terrorist group to a proud and enterprising people.

"We have sent representatives to conventions, contributed to conferences, distributed our newsletter, published our booklets," Hussaini said.

There are PLO offices throughout the world, including one in New York in conjunction with the United Nations. BEIRUT-The rightist militias of Lebaoon have once again chosen a hard-line response to overtures from the government of President Elias Sarkis.

On Friday, rightist militias rejected a six-point compromise "security plan" that would have extended for six months the mandate of the Syrian-dominated Arah peacekeeping force in exchange for a gradual wilbdrawal of the Arah troops in favor of Lebanese forces.

In South Lebanon, rightists kept regular Lebanese army troops pinned down in Kawkaba, and U.N. officers posted nearby were for the first time weighting a "military response" to the militia position, according to U.N. sources.

The joint command of the main rightist militia groups appeared to dim hopes of an early political settlement consolidating the most promising ceasefire bid since the Syrian-rightist violence began.

The command issued a statement rejecting the compromise security plan apparently leaked to local media by government officials. The rightist statement said that "any negotiation on any of the points" was ruled out and that the provisions "singly and as a whole ignore the principles on which the national struggle (of the militias)

Nuclear showdown in Sweden

By Harald Mollerstrom STOCKHOLM-

Sweden's coalition government, which has been leading this country through its worst postwar economic crisis, is nearing a showdown on its most critical issue—the future of nuclear energy in Sweden.

Political commentators say a near miracle is needed to avoid a government crisis hy the end of this year hecause of the worsening split over nuclear policy among the three coalition partners who came to power when the Social Democrats were ousted nearly two years ago.

Scientists seeking new technologies to deal with the energy crisis

Hydrogen gas from water

BRUSSELS - The science fiction dream of a gas-powered world drawing its energy needs from water bas come a step nearer reality with a breakthrough in hydrogen production.

Funded by the Europeao Common Market, a team of scientists working in northern italy has developed a new technique of making the gas from water at very bigh temperatures.

It is the world's first closedcircuit system for producing hydrogen from water by thermocbemical means, and is currently being compared with other methods of breaking down water into hydrogen and oxygen by electrolysis.

The experimental laboratoryscale process at the EEC's Ispra Research Center has been operational since May, and produces 100 liters of hydrogen an hour by a complex chemical process using sulfuric acid.

With oil expected to be scarce by the end of the century, the Europeao Community bas set aside $36 million for hydrogen research over four years.

The aim-to develop ways of turning water into the gas which many scientists hope will make possible a 21st or 22nd century "hydrogeo economy."

One of the lightest gases known to present-day science, hydrogen was once used to raise airships laden with passengers or cargo.

But the world's greatest traosatlantic zeppelin, the Hindenberg, demoostrated both the daoger and the latent power of the gas when it exploded in a ball of fire at Lakehurst, New Jersey, in 1937.

After this disaster airships faded from the scene, But the explosive qualities of hydrogen later made is an ideal rocket

The second and third stages of Saturn Five, the rocket which helped put a man on the moon, were powered by liquid hydrogen and oxygen as they launched Apollo spacecraft into orbit.

But it is as a substitute for ordinary petrol and natural gas that bydrogen is tipped as the fuel of the future.

With more versatility than nuclear, geothermal, wave or form like hydrogen could help independent, preserve the mobile life-style industrialized mao has come to expect as bis

According to the EEC's energy experts, it could one day become economic to combine hydrogen with coal-based products to make synthetic natural gas, and synthetic gasoline.

Eventually, when all fossil fuels become scarce, hydrogen could be used in the home for cooking and heating, supplied through special pipelines and passed through purpose-built

"There are many ways il could replace oil and natural gas," said Mariano Maggiore, an official at the EEC's joiot research center here which runs. the establishment at Ispra, Italy, where the new technique was developed.

"It hurns well and at a high temperature," he added. "It also reconverts to water when burned and is non-polluting as she consumer end."

But there are snags. At least as much energy is needed to break down water into its constituent elements, hydrogen aod oxygen, as will be given by the two resulting gases.

The new thermochemical process requires large amounts of heat, for example. The other method uses electricity.

So hydrogen produced from water cannot be considered as a virtually limitless energy source like the sun, or as a natuarally existing fuel like coal or gas. It would be, as the EEC's hydrogen experts point out in an unpublished paper here, an "energy carrier" like electricity itself.

Hydrogen is already present in large proportions in coal gas, which is half hydrogen, and town gas, which is a mixture of hydrogen and carbon monoxide.

Today, hydrogen is mostly used in the chemical industry to make ammonia and methanol, and is produced un site out of methane, the main cnnstituent in natural gas,

Although goal is expected tu be around for several hundred more years, as oil and natural gas run out and their prices rise, the EEC's experts predict a developing market for "merchani" hydrogen.

Bul the Iwo principle watersplitting methods-the thermochemical cycle and electrolysis -remain unproven economically, and EEC energy ministers decided to fund the research early because of the long leadtimes of the technologies invol-

So far the European Community has kept in the forefront of hydrugen production

It has cuncentrated its efforts on the thermochemical technique, work on which started eight years ago, and allocated about $19 million for the 1977-1980 research program.

Over the same period, the EEC commission expects to spend nearly $17 million nartfinancing private research into hydrogen utilization and its production by electrolysis.

Studies of electrolysis are much further advanced, and laboratory results of this technique have so far been good.

The EEC experts think when the technology is fully developed, the cost of electrolytic hydrogen will not be much more than that of the conventional methace produced hydrogen,(R).

Solar collectors for Arizona power

By Allen Carver
PHOENIX, Arizona —
Working with the sun isn't the easy way, but scientists are closing in on a solar power system they hope will provide one solution to future energy sbortages.

Planners from the U.S. government and officials of Arizona's largest utility are cooperating with engineers from Motorola's government elec-tronics division to build the world's largest solar cell power plant in Phoenix.

The scientists think they may have a successful solar converter uperating within two years. More importantly they predict that within 15 years the solar cell unit could generate several million kilowatt hours per year — enough electricity to supply the needs of 500 average bomes - at a cost low enough to compete with other power sources.

Operating under the Phoenix sun, which sbines ao average of 294 days a year, the $8.7 million plaot will be the largest single practical application of solar technology to date, ac-cording to Lee Johnson, a marketing manager fur Moto-

Motorola designed the solar cells and energy collectors with federal funding from the Department of Energy. The city donated a 12-acre site at the Phoenix Sky Harbor Ioterna-tional Airport. Arizona Public Service Co. is managing the construction and eventually will operate the plant. The state's Solar Energy Research Commission is studying possible public benefits from the pro-

Construction is scheduled to begin late this fall with com-pletion by late 1980. The place will generate power for a new terminal at the airport.

The solar-cell technology to be employed at the plant, based on technology used in manned and unmanned space projects, came after six years of development costing about $100 million.

It will produce photovoltaic power generated directly from the sun through use of solar

. The airport site was chosen because it met DOE grant requirements that the solar unit have public exposure, that it be built near the city's largest freeway, and that it be used to power an airport terminal lding, allowing the public to actually experience solar

Johnson emphasized that cost, not technology, is now the problem.

The technical maturity has been achieved and the systems cao be expanded easily. It's the cost we have to bring down," Jobnson said. "It's quite expensive now be-of the cost per wan which is bow everyone looks at electrical costs. Keeping the costs of solar technology within limits is one of the criteria Motorola had to meet before receiving the DOE grant The Energy Department is determined to make solar a competitive power

"We've reached that goal in isolated places," Johnson said. "It may seem expensive here in a developed area serve by a larg utility. But in some areas it can be competitive with other power sources when you consider the costs of power poles and lines needed." Last year, the Department of Energy decided to fund only solar coergy projects which could be constructed at costs of $2 per watt by 1983 and 50 cents per watt in 1990. These figures compare with 1977 Motorola estimate of $18 per watt for the Phoenix Airport project. The solar plant construction is costing 12 times as much, per watt of electricity as a conventional coal-fired plant.

"The DOE goal over the next ten years is optimistic," John-son said, "Additional technology breakthroughs are needed before we reach that goal."

Motorola officials said the airport project design is anticipating costs of $8.29 per watt once lit begins operation. By the time we finish the airport project we should find that we can cut costs even further." Johnson said.—(UPI)

Tanzania star wins marathon

12 (AP) — Gidemas Shahanga, a 19-year-nld unknown from Tanzania, came loping from hehind to win an astonishing victory in the marathon in the Commonwealth Games Friday

With one mile to go he trailed by 70 yards behind Jerome Drayton, one of Canada's sportiog heroes, and the crowd of 40,000 al Edmonton's new Commonwealth stadium got ready to cheer another Canadian gold medal

Then Shahanga, a slightly huilt man of 140 pounds, made his bid. He entered the stadium fresh and lively after running the classic distance of 26 miles 385 yards along Edmonton's pretty tree-lived streets, and crossed the finish line waving happily to the standing crowd. His time was 2:15:39.7.

Drayton was 250 yards behind and won the silver medal. Another Canadian, Paul Bannon, was third.

During the day Canada rea-ched a total of 42 gold medals and claimed a record for these games, which began in 1930. But Shahanga's triumph was only one feature of a day that saw gold medals shared out among some of the lesser sporting powers among the 46

Japao's big trade surplus. major factor in the decline of the U.S. dollar, has ironically cootinued to increase largely because of the dollar's fail, according to the Japanese government's annual white paper on the economy.

It said the value of the dollar had slumped against the yen so sharply that time-lags had built up before the effect was reflected io Japan's economic performance. Normally when a country's currency strengthens, its exports decline because they become more expensive and its imports increase as they become chea-

But in Japan's case, the report said. exports had continued at the new, higher value of the yen before demand built up for the cheaper imports.

The report, published Friday, said the trade sorplus might not be cut until the dollar exchange rate stahilized. But it said Japan was aim:

ing for a higher ecocomic growth rate than the rest of the world, hoping that this would hoost imports and reduce the oeed to export. The government had also taken steps to curb the volume of exports in the fiscal year ending next March and to increase imports through emergency chases from abroad, it

Japan had began to change its export-oriented economic structure into one which would promote the import of manufactured and semi-manufactur-reduce its trade surplus is a scheme to make special imports of items for which it may have oo pressing need -for instance, oil to be stockpiled in idle tankers.

At a news conference Saturday a senior minister said he had decided on a target of $12.5 hillion for such imports during the present finaocial year - more than three times

The minister for international trade and industry, Toshio Komoto, said the target was decided during a meeting with the director-general of the ecooomic planning agency, Kiichi Miyazawa.

Komoto said they agreed that the program would be boosted with additional imports of mineral products, including uranium concentrates, aircraft, including ships and oil.

Both men are members of the council of economic ministers which is meeting oo Sept. 2 to decide further measures to cut Japan's trade surpluses.

Komoto said the $12.5 hillion target should include five hillion dollars worth of mineral and energy resources.

He anticipated $900 million worth of oil nor stockpiling oo idle tankers, $1. hillion of aircraft for leasing abroad and $3.5 hillion in ships built by overseas subsidiaries of Japanese shipping lines.

Other suggestions were to increase imports of aircraft for domestic airlines to 5800 million and to $300 million for goods including aircraft or government use:

Aides discuss proposing rejoining ILO to Carter

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 (AP) - A cabinet-level committee has held an unaonounced meeting to discuss the possibility of recommending to President Jimmy Carter that the Uoited States rejoin the International Labor Organization, it was learned Friday.

Carter withdrew the United States from membership in the United Nations agency last November, largely because he believed the ILO had deviated from its original purpose of improving the lot of workers around the world.

Of particular concern to the Carter administration was the tendency of Communist and Arah countries and their Third World allies to use the Genevabased organization as a sounding hoard for attacks on Israel. Officials refused comment on the outcome of the Thursday meeting, chaired by Lahor Secretary Ray Marshall. They said a statement probably will be issued on the U.S. position next week.

One official said, however, there was sentiment among some senior officials that the Uoited States should remain out of the ILO for the time being even though the administration was encouraged by the results of the recent meeting of the 137-nation organization. In June, a wave of Third World abstentions and absences led to the defeat of a fouryear old resolution calling on the ILO to use "all means at ils disposal" to persuade Israel to eod racism and discrimination in occupied territories. According to one official, the administration most likely will await further signs that the ILO is being responsive to other U.S. concerns hefore any decision is made to rejoin the organization.

Aside from the ILO's leodency lo joject "political considerations' into its deliberations, Marshall has accused the ILO of not applying labor standards equally around the world and of issuing condemnations of individual countries without adequate investigation.

The cabinet-level committee is composed of representatives of the labor, state and commerce departments and of U.S. labor and husiness organizaded 5-1. Let's grant that this would actually be bad luck, but that still wouldn't excuse a failure to make the slam. The fact is that any declarer who starts out by winning the heart lead and trying to cash the clubs and then the diamonds -- or vice versa — will eventually finish behind the well-known eight ball. What's more, he will have only himself to blame for the sad outcome. A really cautions declarer would have no trouble making would have no trouble that the slam. He would attempt to protect himself against a bad division of the cards in either or both of the key suits. As soon as dummy came down, he would start looking for a method of play designed to overcome every possible adverse distribution of the missing cards. In the actual case, declarer gloomy forebodings would prove fully justified and he would have an easy time mak-

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR SUNDAY, AUGUST 12. What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth ARIES

ARIES
(Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)

You may find it easier to do things yourself than depend ou others who do not wish to cooperate. You'll do them better, too. TAUBUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) Avoid overexertion and excitement; make no unnecessary changes in smooth-running projects. Romance and family interests in special planetary favor. GEMINI

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Better than some days, less smooth than others. Strive with the best intent and only good can result. Believe, with strong faith, in yourself — and your goals.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) SA Neither look for trouble nor because you look the other way. Face up to situations and you won't fool yourelf or find problems as difficult to solve.

LEO (July 34 to Aug. 23) Access

Don't lose confidence in your ability to produce the results you want — even if temporarily stymied. Keep trying. Some dandy advaniages on your side.

VIRGO (Ang. 24 to Sept. 23) RP 2 There's a tendency now to act without thinking, then ask yourself the "why" of failure lap out a workable program BEFORE starting. Also take note of new trends. Good results for like efforts. LIBRA

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

There may be some conflict between desire and necessity. Be realistic, as you usually are, and the answer will come. Romance and travel favored. SCORPIO

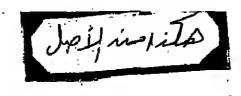

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) M An unusual request deserves your consideration. Fulfilling it may involve some inconvenience, but you will be amply repeid. Late hours bring some surprising news. SAGITTARIUS.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) X 15 P Change, variety and travel are highlighted in your chart. You may have to make some adjustments in your life, but the challenge should prove interesting. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) V

Even though a Sunday, you may be able to complete a transaction which enhances security. A friend versed in the law could be of great help AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) The accent is on social activity. Welcome the opportunity to meet people, make new friends, perhaps make contacts which could prove invaluable, business-

PECES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Planetary influences somewhat restrictive. Be especially careful in romance out of hand.

Forest wipes polish off F.A. Cup winners

LONDON, Aug. 12 (R)-Nottingham Forest, the English soccer league champions, sounded an early warning to their first division rivals when they swamped Ipswich Town 5-0 to win the Charity Shield match here Saturday.

A crowd of 65,000 at a cold and wet Wembley Stadium were treated to some vintage forest sytle io the annual preseason encounter between the League and Football Association Cup winners.

Injury-hit Ipswich, missing four of the team who beat Arsenal to capture the Cup last May, soon buckled under Forest's break-neck assault.

After nine minutes defenders Mick and Bric Gates got into a tangle and Martin O'Neill nipped in to score. Ipswich struggled to get back on terms but fell further behind when Peter Withe, the striker manager Brian Clough wants to sell, ignored offside appeals to bead Forest into a two-goal

New Lisbon prime minister finds parties unreceptive

Prime Minister Altredo Nobre da Costa and party leaders rested Saturday after a shaky first round in negutia-tions to form a new cabinet. Earlier, the 55-year-old technocrat told newsmen he was optimistic in spite of negative party reactions to his proposals for Portugal's nintb government in four years.

The Socialists, the biggest party, with 35 per cent of the national vote, blocked a speedy end to the three-week political crisis by refusing to support him. Socialist leader Mario Soares said his party would not back a government that failed to give the leading role to the party most voters supported.

Americans say SAL] talks vital--poll

-Americans agree with U.S. President Carter that Russian abuse of buman rights should not disrupt negotiations for a new arms limitation treaty, an Associated Press-NBC poll shows.

Public support for a new Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty (SALT) has increased in recent weeks despite Soviet prosecutions of dissidents and continued suspicion about Russian good faith io abiding by agreements, according to the poll.

More than seven out of 10 Americans—71 per cent—now favor a U.S.-Soviet agreement that would limit nuclear weapons, up four points from the finding of an AP-NBC News poll in June.

Opposition to a pact has remained steady at 22 per cent, while those who are undecided on the issue dropped from 11 per cent in June to seven this

Three-quarters of the public said that SALT negotiations should continue. Fifteen per cent favored breaking off the talks. Nine per cent of the country, "unfortunately we have 1,600 adults interviewed telephone were not sure.
